Description

Drawn from the entries from The Press' first annual Poetry Contest, Quiet Diamonds, 2018 consists of forty-four poems from thirty-three poets. Diane Kendig, professor, poet, and author, says of the collection: "Quiet Diamonds reminded me that the Greek origin of the word 'anthology' meant "a collection of flowers," because the poems here are as varied as those in a botanical garden, as long-lasting, and bright as diamonds. Breathe and read deeply here."
